

Title: Final Logistics Meeting 60

Author: Martin Hosken

Introduction: Everything is coming together nicely for what looks to be a fun and useful meeting. The enclosed details include what was in the previous logistics document.

Arrival: If you are flying through Bangkok, you can probably check your baggage directly to Chiang Mai (CNX). Depending on your incoming airline and which airline you use to fly to ChiangMai, you will be able to transfer directly without having to recheck. In this case you will go through an immigration check at Bangkok as you transfer from international to domestic. Notice, in this case, do not go to the main immigration desks, but follow the signs and head towards the domestic gates. You will not need to collect your baggage at Bangkok, unless you checked it to there and have to recheck it at Bangkok. Some airlines require you to recheck at Bangkok and may or may not require you to collect your luggage there. If you do not need to collect your luggage at Bangkok you will still go through a customs check for your hand luggage at Bangkok, then go upstairs to recheck.

Arriving at Chiang Mai airport, if your baggage is checked from outside Thailand, proceed to the international terminal (turn right out of the tunnel). You will clear customs there. If you rechecked your baggage at Bangkok then you will have already cleared customs and you should proceed to the domestic terminal (turn left out of the tunnel).

On leaving the controlled area, one can change money or use an ATM to get cash. There is a ฿150 surcharge made by the local bank for the privilege of using their system to change money. The best way to get to your hotel is to order a taxi from one of the official taxi stands at the airport at arrival. The cost to the nightmarket area, where the Shangri-La is, is ฿150.

If you want a local sim card for your phone, you can often find free sim cards available. They have about 10 mins of local calls on them and make their profit off paying more (2x) for your calls. They are a good deal for a short stay < 2 weeks, especially if you don't make any calls.

Costs: There will be no venue charge for those staying off site.

Food: There are many local restaurants within walking distance of the hotel. Most of them are in the night market area, accessed by coming out of the Shangri-La and turning right.

There are also many other non-air conditioned restaurants in the area. And if you are willing to walk further, there are lots of restaurants on the east side of the moat, near Thapae Gate. You should not starve!

Outings: ChiangMai is a tourist city with many outings available. We have arranged with the hotel for there to be a few half day outings, on the Wednesday afternoon (despite what the brochure might say), that you can book from the meeting, regardless of where you are staying. Details are enclosed with this document. Please come ready to book on the first day. In addition, on the Wednesday night, we have arranged a special Thai cultural show and meal. The price for this, including travel from and to the Shangri-La will be ฿500. Again, we will take bookings on the first day.
